lengthy debate on the subject of separation of church and state, I do need to make some observations on that matter at this juncture. As a Ph.D. in American History, I have taken great pains to study our Constitution and the writings of the Founding Fathers. There is no question in my mind that the so-called wall erected to separate church and state was erected to prevent the state from interfering with the activities of the church-not to prevent the church from being involved in the activities of the state. In other words, it is my view that church involvement in the political process is not something that would have been frowned upon at all by the Founding Fathers. Indeed, I would imagine that they might be surprised if there were no such activity.

Frankly, plenty of churches on both the right and left currently allow such activity, and that fact raises the question of selective enforcement by the IRS. If the IRS decides to step up enforcement in this area, are we going to see some churches lose their tax exempt status simply because of a volunteer meeting in the church basement? Will we see a situation where, depending on the political party in power at the time, harassment of churches exclusively on the right or churches exclusively on the left? If the reality is that the IRS currently looks the other way when it comes to such minimal activity, putting a bright line test in law for such minimal activity will put everyone's mind at ease and would seem reason-

To address these concerns and questions, the second part of this bill states that it is acceptable for a church to devote up to 5 percent of the organization's gross revenues to campaign on behalf of—or in opposition to—any political campaign or candidate for public office. This would allow for the very limited and modest activities given as examples above.

Finally, I would note that the legislation contains an aggregate limit which states that both the grass roots lobbying activity and the campaign activity combined cannot exceed 20 percent of gross revenues.

It is my hope that this proposal will generate broad bipartisan support, and I encourage my colleagues to join us and cosponsor this legislation.

A TRIBUTE TO THE CREW OF SPACE SHUTTLE "CHALLENGER"

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the seven crew members of the space shuttle Challenger. Ten years ago on January 28, 1986, these brave astronauts fell victim to one of our Nation's most horrific tragedies—the Challenger explosion. Indeed, human space exploration is and has always been inherently risky but this should not deter us from reaching for the stars or from exploring this new frontier.

Forty nine space shuttle missions have been succssfully completed since 1986. The safety features of the space shuttle have improved substantially since the Challenger tragedy. It is possible, NASA officials believe, that if a similar accident happened today, crew members could escape with their own oxygen supply and parachutes.

A healthy shuttle program is fundamental to construction of the international space station-starting in late 1997, which will be the basis of further human exploration of Mars and beyond. NASA plans to launch 26 shuttle flights between 1997 and 2002 to help assemble this station. Additionally, a preliminary plan designed by NASA and the Russian Space Agency envisions using the space shuttle to deliver Russian hardware to resupply the orbiting Mir station. Therefore, the space shuttle program will be instrumental in the enhancement of international cooperation, the forerunner of world space. Furthermore, the reusable space shuttle is the way of the future for launching commercial and military satellites.

As one of the parents of the astronauts remarked, he was "pleased that the crew's footsteps were being followed" and "that their hopes and dreams are marching forward." On the 10th anniversary of this disaster, we must express support for the continuation of the space exploration mission in order to truly honor those seven brave explorers.

TRIBUTE TO GERARD KLUPP

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 1996
Mr. KLECZKA, Mr. Speaker, Lrise to

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a lifelong friend and resident of Milwaukee, my hometown, Mr. Gerard Klupp, as he is honored as Person of the Year by the South Side Advancement Association at the 49th annual Lincoln Day banquet.

Jerry Klupp is devoted to his family, his God, and his Nation. He is the proud father of two children and grandfather of five and has served his parish, St. Adalbert's, in many capacities. Enlisting in the Air National Guard in 1949, Jerry was activated into the Air Force in 1951, and was honorably discharged in 1953 as a sergeant. He is currently active in his American Legion Post and the AMVETS.

Jerry Klupp is also a successful businessman. Working in his father's business, Frank J. Klupp & Sons, a construction firm, Jerry has had a personal, hands-on influence to many public and private projects, both big and small, in the Milwaukee area.

Many Milwaukee civic organizations have also been graced with Jerry's service over the years. Beneficiaries of Jerry's gifts of time and talents include the South Side Business Club, the Milwaukee Society—Polish National Alliance, the South Side Advancement Association, and Polish Fest.

Mr. Speaker, Jerry Klupp's dedication to his community should serve as an example to us all.

With all of this in mind, I am pleased to present Jerry Klupp with an American flag which has proudly flown over our Nation's Capitol. Keep up the good work, God Bless, and thanks for being a model citizen, Jerry.

TELEVISION VIOLENCE

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert my Washington Report for Wednesday,

January 17, 1996 into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD:

TELEVISION VIOLENCE

Most of us have seen something offensive on television—portrayals of casual sex, talk shows which glorify all the wrong values, or graphic violence. Adults can, and often do, turn off the set in disgust; but these images can be both powerful and confusing to children. While many parents try to closely monitor what their children watch, in this age of cable television they are frequently confounded by the proliferation of new programs.

TV has become a very strong competitor to families, schools, and other community institutions in shaping young people's attitudes and values about acceptable behavior. Television is cheap, accessible and convenient. Most research on the effects of television on children has centered on violent programming. Congress has also discussed a number of approaches to lessen TV violence.

RESEARCH

Virtually every American household has at least one television set, and children are among the most avid viewers. The average pre-schooler and school-aged child watches two to four hours of TV per day. By the time children finish elementary school, they have on average viewed 8,000 murders and over 100,000 additional acts of violence on television. A 1994 report analyzed ten television channels for 18 hours one day and found over 1,800 acts of violence-more than 10 violent scenes per hour, per channel, all day. But perhaps most disturbing is the finding that TV violence is most common on Saturday morning, when children are most likely to be watching.

No one believes that television by itself causes aggression, but research indicates convincingly that violent programming contributes to the problem. Most of the 1,000 or so studies on TV violence show that it can influence viewers of all ages and socioeconomic levels toward more violent and aggressive behavior. Watching the more violent shows can easily lead a person to develop an image of a mean world in which people cannot be trusted and in which violence is commonplace, even acceptable.

WHAT CAN BE DONE

The public has increasingly demanded that broadcasters show more restraint, but progress was slow. The industry for many years denied that violent programming was harmful to children, and argued that restrictions could limit creativity and interfere with First Amendment protections on free speech. However, the four major television networks agreed in 1993 to place parental warnings on programs that might contain excessive violence. In early 1994, network and cable television executives agreed to have their programming independently monitored for two years.

Meanwhile, pressure for greater government involvement in limiting violent programming has also mounted. The federal government generally has imposed only limited restrictions on the content of television shows. The Supreme Court this month upheld federal regulations that ban indecent programming between 6:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. However, this ban has usually been enforced against programming which is sexually explicit or contains vulgar language—not against violent programming.

Attention has recently focused on the socalled "V-chip," which would allow parents to block violent programming. Under this proposal, television programs would be rated much as movies are. These ratings would be electronically transmitted to the V-chip, a receptor inside the television set. Parents could then program their TVs not to receive programs with certain ratings.

During consideration of a telecommunications reform bill in August 1995, I voted for an amendment to require that all 13-inch and larger TVs sold in the United States include a V-chip. The measure, which was approved by the House, would give broadcasters one year to establish voluntary rules for rating video programming and to begin transmitting such ratings. If the industry failed to act, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) would develop its own guidelines. A House-Senate conference committee has agreed to the V-chip provisions.

Critics of the V-chip charge that it would impose unconstitutional restrictions on TV programming. However, the V-chip proposal does not bar broadcasters from showing violent programs—it simply allows consumers to regulate the reception of such programs in their homes. Just as the system of voluntary movie ratings has survived legal scrutiny, I believe that the V-chip will as well.

In addition, the Chairman of the FCC has proposed greater requirements on broadcasters to air educational programs for children. Some schools have also begun media literacy programs to encourage students to view TV more critically.

OUTLOOK

Many parents feel bombarded by ideas and images hostile to the values they want to instill in their children. Television is not the only source of trouble—music, video games, movies, and the Internet can also be conduits for violence or vulgarity. But TV remains by far the most influential type of media, and how we deal with it will be instructive in dealing with other types.

Many questions remain: How can the Vchip technology be made more affordable? What distinctions should we make between different violent images-for example, Wile E. Coyote attacking the Road Runner vs. a documentary on the Holocaust? How should violence depicted on television news be treated? Not all instances of violent programming are necessarily inappropriate, but we must figure out how to protect children from violence that is clearly excessive. I think it might help to require each broadcaster to say when it applies to the FCC for renewal of its license what it intends to do for the children that it serves and how it intends to discourage violence.

It is clear that there are no easy solutions to this problem, but we cannot abandon our children to the wasteland of television violence. I believe the V-chip can come to be an important tool for parents to use in combat-ting the effects of TV violence. But I do not believe that technology will ever serve as a substitute for the role parents play in screening the programs their children watch and discussing with them what they see. Right now, violence sells. It is up to the public to remove this perverse economic incentive by voting with our feet-or more accurately, with our remote controls. Without any doubt public pressure will be more important than a federal statute to make the purveyors of media violence display good judgment and exercise self-restraint.

TRIBUTE TO WILLIE JULIUS MORRISON

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to announce the retirement of Willie Julius Morrison, assistant director Metro-Dade Police Department. After serving 4 years in the Air Force, on January 17, 1966 Willie Morrison became a patrol officer with the public safety department.

This was the beginning of a quick and steady rise to leadership. In 1970 Officer Morrison became Sergeant Morrison. Three years later, he was promoted to lieutenant. By 1979 he was the police major for the north region. In February 1980, he was designated as chief of the newly formed special services division.

During this rapid rise within the leadership ranks, Willie Morrison achieved several firsts. He was the first black lieutenant in the Metro-Dade Police Department, the first black police major; the first black police chief; and the first and only black assistant director within the department.

Willie Morrison has served in a variety of professional positions and he faithfully serves as husband and father to Rose and Julius respectively.

It is important for you to know that this distinguished leader has served the Metropolitan Dade County community well. We thank him for 30 years of public service.

TRIBUTE TO BENJAMIN LONGMAN

HON. MARTIN OLAV SABO

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, our Nation recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of our hard-fought victory in World War II. During this conflict, many people at home and abroad made sacrifices for their country. One of these was my constituent, Mr. Benjamin Longman.

Mr. Longman served in World War II as a flight trainee and later as a flight instructor. Due to an administrative error, however, military records did not accurately reflect his service until they were corrected in May of 1982. At that time, the U.S. Air Force confirmed that Mr. Longman did in fact serve on active military duty in 1943.

Mr. Longman, now 82 years old, was honorably discharged from military service in 1945. As his representative in Congress, I wish to publicly thank him for his military service to the United States of America. All of our fellow citizens should be grateful for his patriotism. Mr. Speaker, I commend Benjamin Longman's example of service to all Members of Congress and to all Americans.

ODELL JOHNSON, JR., AND HIS COMMITMENT TO HIGHER EDU-CATION

HON. RONALD V. DELLUMS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mr. DELLUMS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share with my colleagues the fact that Mr. Odell Johnson, Jr., has dedicated over 25 years of committed service to the education of Oakland and the bay area.

Odell served as Laney College president for 15 years, longer than any other president in the history of the Peralta Community College District. He received his education from Fresno City College, St. Mary's College, and the California State University at Hayward. He then became the dean of students of St. Mary's College and dean of instruction at the College of Alameda.

He continued to make important contributions to increase standards for higher education as president of Laney College, where he oversaw the educational opportunities afforded to the most ethnically diverse of the California community colleges.

Odell's many contributions as a respected leader extend beyond the boundaries of the bay area. They include State and national recognition for his outstanding service to higher education. In addition to his services as an educator, he has been active on boards in community-based organizations such as the West Oakland Health Center, the Black Adoption Placement and Research Center, the Oakland Ensemble Theater, and the Bay Area Dance Series.

Odell also maintains a strong commitment to assisting young people in identifying and achieving their personal, educational, and career goals. Through his leadership, he has assisted many students in developing and understanding a respect and an appreciation for people from diverse backgrounds and cultures.

THE TOWING VESSEL SAFETY ACT OF 1996

HON. PATRICK J. KENNEDY

OF RHODE ISLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 1996

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to announce the introduction of the Towing Vessel Safety Act of 1996. This bill was brought to the top of my legislative agenda due to the recent oil spill that occurred off the coast of Rhode Island.

Almost 1 million gallons of home heating oil spilled into our waters when the Scandia tugboat caught fire and caused the North Cape barge to run aground. Sadly, this incident has had serious environmental and economic repercussions in my State. Most notable is the damage to our coastal ecosystems. Thousands of lobsters and other wildlife were heavily impacted by this tragedy. In all, it will take months to remediate the damage and restore our environment and industries like commercial fishing and tourism to their full health.

The Towing Vessel Safety Act will establish guidelines that every tugboat have navigational, fire prevention, and various other safety provisions necessary to avoid incidents like the one in Rhode Island. Moreover, the bill will ensure that the master and crew of tugboats are properly trained and licensed in the operation of the vessel and its equipment. Lastly, the Towing Vessel Safety Act will require the Coast Guard to make routine inspections to guarantee that all guidelines are followed.

Mr. Speaker, I am deeply saddened by what has happened in Rhode Island. I am hopeful, however, that the Towing Vessel Safety Act will be an important first step in avoiding similar tragedies.

I am looking forward to working with the Coast Guard, the House Transportation Committee, and all my colleagues in Congress to
